

2021-22 Call for Works-in-Progress Sessions

The UCLA Center for 17th- & 18th-Century Studies and William Andrews Clark Memorial Library are inviting proposals for works-in-progress sessions to take place online via Zoom during the 2021-22 academic year (Fall and Winter quarters). Academic programs supported by the Center/Clark explore the latest research in the early modern period (including the long eighteenth century, which extends through the Romantic period) and in special areas represented in the Clark's collections.

Works-in-Progress Sessions

We welcome proposals from the Center/Clark community, including faculty, librarians and ABD graduate students, for the following format:

The session may be either a discussion of a pre-circulated text, or a 30-minute presentation, followed by open discussion. The sessions will be open to the public, but not recorded. Works-in-progress can include articles or book/thesis research in progress, book/grant/dissertation proposals, or conference papers.

Proposals should include:

- An abstract of no more than 300 words, highlighting the topic's currency for relevant fields
- Suggested respondent (if desired)
- A short bio of the proposed speaker(s)

For information about the Center or Clark Library, please visit our websites at the links above.

DEADLINE: September 15, 2021

Inquiries and proposals can be directed to:

Kathy Sanchez, Manager of Programs – ksanchez@humnet.ucla.edu or Bronwen Wilson, Director of the Center and Clark Library – bwilson@humnet.ucla.edu